SECTION 1
Introduction and Video Clips

In this section:
• Educator Welcome/Introduction
• “That’s What I Am” Film Synopsis
• Overview of Video Clips
DEAR EDUCATOR,

The WWE Studios film That’s What I Am offers educators a powerful and compelling resource for discussing bullying with students. Starring Academy-Award® nominated actor Ed Harris, this film presents a moving and thought-provoking exploration of the insidious ways in which bullying can affect human beings of all ages, including students, educators, families, and members of the communities in which they live.

The film provides universal life lessons and insights into the ways human beings may mistreat individuals and groups. This resource guide is designed to provide a rich variety of tools and resources to help educators discuss the film with their students and use it as a catalyst for meaningful and positive dialogue.

THIS GUIDE INCLUDES:

1. An Introduction Section with a synopsis of the film and an overview of the complimentary That’s What I Am Video Clips that are used as the basis for instruction in this program.

2. A Teacher Planning Section with essential questions aligned with the film’s major themes and principles; a National Education Standards tie-in chart; and a comprehensive interdisciplinary Unit Framework that includes suggestions for general discussions and content-specific ideas for English Language Arts, Social Studies, and Guidance and Counseling.

3. Nine Thematic Lesson Plans with specific instructional activities that include Student Activity Sheets. Organized by Learning Themes, these lessons can be used as stand-alone teaching activities or in succession to link one concept to the next.

4. A reproducible Reflective Journal for students to use throughout the program based on the nine Pillars of Character at the center of the film.
PILLARS OF CHARACTER

- Courage
- Responsibility
- Dignity
- Friendship
- Advocacy
- Resiliency
- Empathy
- Identity
- Morality

YOU CAN USE THESE MATERIALS TO:

- Reinforce concepts about bullying, cyberbullying, equality, and self-identity learned earlier in the year or in previous years.

- Supplement direct instruction and promote concept development about bullying, cyberbullying, equality, and self-identity.

- Integrate the topics of bullying, cyberbullying, equality, and self-identity into your Language Arts, Social Studies, Health, Technology, or Character Education Curriculum.

- Motivate students to learn how to prevent bullying and cyberbullying.

- Link multiple learning themes/instructional activities in succession to develop your own interdisciplinary unit.

- Provide materials for clubs and other after-school activities and volunteer/guest teacher programs.

FILM SYNOPSIS

Set in California against the backdrop of the mid-sixties, That’s What I Am is a coming-of-age story that follows 12-year-old Andy Nichol (Chase Ellison), a bright student who, like most kids his age, will do anything to avoid conflict for fear of suffering overwhelming ridicule and punishment from his junior high school peers.

Everyone’s favorite teacher, Mr. Simon (Ed Harris), pairs Andy with the school’s biggest outcast and social pariah, Stanley, a.k.a. “Big G” (Alexander Walters), on a critical school project. Sporting thick, orange hair, a head too big for his body and ears too big for his head, Big G has been the object of ridicule since grade school. Before long, Andy will learn there was truly a method behind Mr. Simon’s madness as to why he teamed these two up.

After a dramatic incident in the schoolyard, teachers and parents rethink their roles in school and society. Principal Kelner (Amy Madigan) suspends a school bully for brutally beating up a female classmate. The vindictive father of the bully makes Mr. Simon the target of a malicious rumor about his sexuality, causing Mr. Simon to question his calling as an educator and mentor to his students.

When Andy watches “Big G” fearlessly confront the school bully about the incident, a series of events are triggered. Much to Andy’s surprise, he learns that Big G is a brilliant, kind, tolerant human being, who has more dignity than anyone Andy has ever encountered. Big G personifies Mr. Simon’s four-word answer on how to obtain world peace:

HUMAN DIGNITY + COMPASSION = PEACE.
