

World Food Programme

There are currently more than 6.8 billion people in our world and 925 million of them don't have enough to eat. That means nearly 1 out of every 7 people goes to bed hungry each night. At the UN World Food Programme it is our mission to see an end to this devastating epidemic and part of that mission is to get schools involved in the fight against hunger.

As a teacher you know that knowledge is power, and once a student is educated they are empowered to change the world. We firmly believe that today's youth can, and will, change the world – as long as they are given the knowledge and tools to do so. To help facilitate this, we have been hard at work developing educational materials and resources for teachers to use in their classroom to help educate their students about hunger and hunger-related issues.

From encouraging your students to play Freerice to incorporating our activities into your lesson plans to planning a school wide fundraising campaign, the possibilities are endless. So have a look at our resources, bring them into your classroom, and let us know how else we can help.

Together we can make a difference in the world!

Sincerely,

Emma Jane Keller

World Food Programme
Youth Outreach Coordinator